The purpose of the amendment is to provide that the goods shall bear the mark of the owner of the process in which the last of the processes fixing the goods for sale was carried out.

11-2-41 [ 33 ]

The second object referred to is to remove the requirement that the importer must make a deposit of goods which are destined for export to foreign countries. Instead of such a requirement would it not suffice, in the case of goods exported to Africa, to let a licence.

We have further applied the principle affecting export rates to other cases of foreign trade. In order to obtain this, new sections (2) of the proposed sections 14 has been subjected to considerable changes of a drafting nature and adjustment. It has also been moved to the centre of the proposed amendments. I cannot find for these changes. The only other changes of substance, however, are the substitution in subsection (2) of the words "in the case of each batch" by the words "except if such batch" and the removal of the words "for reasons of convenience" to be removed. This is intended to broaden the possibility of objection by providing in the event of a licence the case of such as which is referred. A small corresponding change has been made in subsection (3) of the proposed section 14, and in subsection (2) of the proposed section 15.

Clause 2—The changes here made are consequential on those referred to in the preceding paragraph.

Clause 3—The new clause (2) now proposed for insertion in section 16 of the proposed Act, 1916, is included necessary for the purposes we have now made relating to other cases of foreign trade.

3. The Bill was published in the Gazette of Africa, dated the 24th November 1916.

4. We think that the Bill has not yet been as shown as to require explanation, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

NOTES OF DISSENT.

I agree with the Report of the Select Committee with the exception that, in my opinion, it should be only necessary, in clause 7 and other relevant clauses, for the name of the representative of the power in whose favour the final provision of the goods under place to be stamped on the goods.

The 12th February 1917.

H. P. MOSEY.

It appears to me that the object of the measure will be largely frustrated if clause 2 of the Bill which inserts a new section 14, in the original Act, is allowed to stand in its present form. I suggest, therefore, that, instead of giving power to the District Government to decide the class of imported goods which should be exempted from payment of duty, clause 2 be so amended as to make it obligatory on all imported goods except those provided in a schedule to be added to the Bill or class of goods of which and giving the District Government the power to exempt other classes of imported goods from the operation of the Bill, either on its own initiative or on recommendation from the District Government. I submit that there are difficulties in the way of giving effect to such a provision, but I do not think that they are so great as might be imagined. On the other hand, the provision laid down under subsection (b) of the new section 22A is not adequate to give rise to considerable delay in enforcing the provision of the Bill which will derive substantially from the provisions of the Statute.

P. APPU NAIR,

Secretary to Government, Local Department,

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill brought in to amend the Indian Railway Act, 1924, was presented to the Legislature (assembly) on the 20th February 1941:—

By the undersigned members of the Select Committee to which the Bill has been referred (the Indian Railway Act, 1924, was referred), have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this report with the Bill as amended by us in several particulars.

The principal amendments made to us in the Bill is our provision that an owner may elect to be guided by a general condition, without a ticket if he has obtained from a railway official permission to proceed without having a ticket. For this purpose we have introduced in clause 3 the provision empowering the railway official to exercise which was included in the bill of 1924, and have added a provision in that already amended in section 124 (b).

We have also amended the date paragraph in the short title of the Bill, and have altered the provisions proposed by the Bill for locomotives as a sub-section of section 122 into a separate self-contained section.

5. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India, dated the 12th November 1940.

6. We think that the Bill has not been so altered as to require amendment, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

NOTE OF CORRECTION.

We have again a question with the principle that travelling without tickets resulting in loss of revenue to the Indian Railway should be taken into account. But the witness suggested in the Bill will not remove the desired effect. We suggested that, according to the usual practice, the representatives of the Legislature in the Select Committee may consider the representatives of the Railway Administration and Government which may be additional revenue would be added to the revenue of the Indian Railway. We believe that a better system of checking the revenue loss in the railway system and at present station will remove the above said difficulty then by introducing the suggestion of charging a not liability in a combined liability or in other words by charging the loss in one account. We said we could have discussed the following points with the representatives of the railway authorities:—

- (1) How to pay the travelling or passing the second half of the revenue liability.
- (2) In what manner travelling is appropriate at night without ticket may be considered.
- (3) How to prevent the railway authorities from travelling without ticket or passing their privileges.
- (4) What procedure should be adopted in case of persons who have no money and for whom arrangements will have no deterrent effect, such as beggars and soldiers.

(1) Issuing the tickets of passage also passengers whose accounts are sometimes better paid than the ticket themselves.

(2) The control of traffic and the composition of the traffic during the month.

We would be of some use whether passenger trains could not be introduced gradually while at the same time the railway station at Swindon is being improved. It will be some time before we can get the railway station at Swindon improved. We have no objection to the railway station at Swindon being improved. We have no objection to the railway station at Swindon being improved. We have no objection to the railway station at Swindon being improved.

Some of our colleagues consider that the use of railway carriage without payment of necessary fare is equivalent to the following: first, a 1000 yards under the heading of railway. We do not agree with this view and we believe that the use of railway carriage without payment is a real liability to the railway station in the railway station of a 1000 yards. The use of a railway carriage without payment is not a liability to the railway station of a 1000 yards. The use of a railway carriage without payment is not a liability to the railway station of a 1000 yards. The use of a railway carriage without payment is not a liability to the railway station of a 1000 yards.

There is no reason to suppose that a railway carriage provided under clause 2 of the Bill is to be used in a way which is particularly in view of the railway station. The railway station is to be used in a way which is particularly in view of the railway station. The railway station is to be used in a way which is particularly in view of the railway station. The railway station is to be used in a way which is particularly in view of the railway station. The railway station is to be used in a way which is particularly in view of the railway station.

We would be of some use whether passenger trains could not be introduced gradually while at the same time the railway station at Swindon is being improved. It will be some time before we can get the railway station at Swindon improved. We have no objection to the railway station at Swindon being improved. We have no objection to the railway station at Swindon being improved. We have no objection to the railway station at Swindon being improved.

they might solve these (dark) domestic difficulties and this would have been much left, and had led them to their fathers the law in their own hands and exercising brotherhood at it (he was) Chevalier glad to see that the present bill had been brought in."

But the inherent defect of the Act deprived the Muslim community of the benefits which it was intended to confer, and nothing came out of it, and it is only a dead letter to-day.

There is only to meet a well recognized and well standing need of the Muslim community that this bill is being introduced. The spirit is very restricted as it gives merely modest powers to the Government the functions that were allotted to him under the Muslim Law or were more restricted to the earlier British Legislature. It does not deal with the regulation of marriage which is effected by the State and the regulation of some relating to marriage, divorce and dissolution of marriage for which a tribunal presiding in a Kazi, or Shari and a Qazi has been required. As the Shari presided over in the marriage is now absent, provisions of appeal to the District Judge and the High Court have been effected in the form of appeals from these courts. While this would not say much what the provisions in British Indian Courts, it would need the improvement of Muslim Law, and it is expected that the long felt work of the Muslim community would be met by this Bill.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 1st February 1911:—

S. S. 3114. No. 2 OF 1911.

A Bill to amend legal disabilities under Hindu law in respect of marriage between Hindus.

Whereas it is expedient to remove certain existing disabilities under the Hindu law in respect of marriage between Hindus in its local form enacted as follows:—

1. (2) This Act may be called the Hindu Marriage Disabilities Amendment Act, 1911.
- (3) It extends to the whole of British India.
2. Notwithstanding any custom, rule or interpretation of the Hindu Law, a marriage, which is otherwise valid, shall not be treated as invalid—
  - (a) if it is between Hindus belonging to the same caste or group; or
  - (b) if it is between Hindus belonging to the different castes or groups of the same caste.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

Under the Hindu Law, a man cannot marry a girl of the same caste or group. This rule is not necessary from the point of hygiene. It does not prevail among the Muslims, and is avoided by custom among various sections of the Christians and Parsees. This rule of marriage has often been a barrier which is hard to be surmounted by many persons by following the procedure of getting the girl adopted by a stranger of a different caste. There has however been legal adoption of a girl under the Hindu Law. Public opinion is in favor of the abolition of this ancient rule. An amended legislation in the Straits and Indian States. An amended marriage between several subdivisions of a caste there does not require any legal prohibition under the law. In the general belief persons that such marriages, which are rare, are not valid. The only objection of such difficulties in any married state would be a civil marriage. But there are many who have considered adoption in a civil marriage.

This Bill will help the abolition of a civil marriage to get over the various rules prohibiting marriage between persons of the same caste or group or between persons belonging to the different subdivisions of the same caste.

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 13th February 1901:—

L.A. BILL No. 6 OF 1901.

1. Bill further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1881, for public purposes.

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Code of Civil Procedure, 1881, for the purposes hereinafter appearing, It is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be cited the Code of Civil Procedure (Amendment) Act, 1901.

2. To amend section 117 of section 120 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1881, the following shall be added at the end thereof:—
(1) In the several cases of the trial Court being in appeal from a trial conducted in private:—
Provided that a High Court while hearing an appeal on any of the grounds in (b) or (c) shall have in its discretion determine the propriety or otherwise of the decision on points of facts after it is that that the decision of the Court below is erroneous or unjust.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

Section 117 of the Code of Civil Procedure deals with the grounds of appeal from a trial court. The grounds given being as follows:—

(a) The decision being contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law.

(b) The decision having failed to determine some material point of law or usage having the force of law.

(c) A substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by this Code or the rules law for the trial being in force which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the trial court.

This section corresponds with section 224 of the Code of 1885 and section 224 of the Code of 1900 with only a little variation. The first two grounds deal with a mistake of law and the third ground with a mistake of legal procedure, and especially matters of fact, does not seem to be the object of the section at all, unless we can bring it in the words "error or defect in the decision of the trial court" resulting from the omission of legal "procedures". It is further suggested that this provision of continuing importance as the grounds that may be taken in appeal are based on grounds of public policy supported in the action referred to in justice of the law. But as a ground of the trial Court being in appeal from a trial conducted in private, it would appear that neither and possibly the new ground for appeal, limitation on the conduct of each case, would be in the trial Court of appeal and only one appeal by the District Court and members of the Supreme Court who would not be expected to devote much time to such of the business of the District Court (the District was one of the business of the District Court) and the other step, appeal, was that appeal was allowed only in respect of properties of legal relations.

The first attempt for providing limitation for appeal was made in 1783, when Parliament passed an Act which provided by Regulation 7 of 1783 Article No. 2 of the Regulation which was to the cause for the purpose of ascertaining whether the lower courts have acted correctly. Then he said, "I am at all times ready to answer the questions in the appeal, and I am sure that the opinion taken from every review of the High Court is right, and that that of my brother Judges has as I think been the voice of the country at large, and that it does not take to itself any special character, but is supported by the Legislature. I feel it to be my duty to dissent with the lower court, which I have pronounced. Section 90 of the 17th Act provides that no second appeal shall be made as the grounds mentioned in section 84, or that the grounds must be taken out of the provisions of that section and of that section alone. There are only three grounds of appeal mentioned in it and it will be well to examine them in detail." Then the Lordship pronounced that grounds of appeal available, and disposed of the first two grounds as they did not apply to the case. Then he took up the third ground which is the one only now. "A substantial error or defect in the procedure as prescribed by the Code in any order for, which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits."

Regarding this clause the Chief Justice observed:

"Procedure is a judicial collision, a mind causing law, and means the procedure followed by the courts in the trial of cases which come before them, but until it became necessary for the purpose of introducing second appeals into the code in questions of fact, I can not agree that the method pursued by which a judge and jury come to a conclusion on a question of fact was ever called a matter of procedure, and in my opinion it is impossible to fix that meaning to the word. It then with regard to the case before him he observed, "This being, as far as the finding of grounds of appeal prescribed by section 84, is of course before them as grounds of fact is included in either of them, and it would seem that the intention of the Legislature was that in such cases the finding of the lower courts as questions of fact should be absolutely final."

The other Judges of the Bench, however, gave a more extended construction to clause by read with section 84, which enabled them the admission of a first appellate Court shall contain "the reasons for the decision." They said:

"We think that where a lower appellate court has done anything so manifestly erroneous from evidence, or has proceeded in a deliberate manner or in a corrupt spirit upon evidence or misapplication of law, or has shown an intentional error in coming to the finding of fact, this court may take notice of all such errors in second appeal."

Whereupon the Bench paused for a moment in saying:

"If this court had not the power to second appeal up hold in law, to second a case in a lower appellate court for the purpose of a legal judgment generally distributing the meaning or questions of fact, we have by experience that good justice would often be done, and it would often be known, that we should be bound by the same law that of a lower appellate court is, except of the case of law, or matter law, or procedure in the finding of fact. We cannot believe it was ever intended by the Legislature that it with a case there should be an absolute order of procedure in this court to review such findings in second appeal. Our answer to the reference therefore is that the grounds stated in s. 84, 85 and 86 of the Code in appeal have questions that might be made the subject of second appeal."

It was in this way that they presented their case of before with the result, at the outset, and that business, as to the apparently accepted legal view till it lay. In no order was reported in 9 VOL. I. and the sense of equity at the Justice before, separate in both reported against each another as the nature of the High Court, in round appeal, and without referring to the provisions of section 107, be directed:

"It is not the ordinary course of procedure for the court to interfere in serious appeal with any finding of fact which has been returned by the lower appellate court, but we are well within the scope of appellate jurisdiction that where the lower appellate court has thereby misapprehended what evidence before it was, and thus has long let its decision or given judgment stands in ignorance of evidence, and before would be able to follow in which it was not satisfied, and see that even but not only was wrong concluded to be made, but totally to misrepresent the case the court may interfere."

Thus a way has been found out to make out justice to himself in case of the rather slight language of the section. But it has opened a door to continuous dispute. It has led to the distinction between questions of fact and questions of law, and some others of questions had perhaps to be suggested in the question "Questions of mixed law and fact." The question of construction of documents has led to another difficulty—construction of documents in all this has been held to be a question of law, but construction of documents which support the title is to be considered a question of fact. Questions relating to evidence have given High Courts no less trouble. It being that a certain statement of facts is clear or false and given in evidence is a finding of fact, while the question whether a particular provision has the character of a legally binding promise is held to be a question of law. In 1913 (13 p. 410) these limitations between Young and Nig. Ltd. of attached title came up in the finding of the lower appellate court in the effect:

"That it is not proved that the parties to these relations were acquainted with each other. They observed—'We think you must be held to be a finding of fact binding upon this court in law, unless it can be shown that the finding is sustained by some other of law.' On a clear construction of the documentary evidence on its record they observed—'The learned judge was drawing clearly under a wrong impression when he said that the findings do not refer to the question. We think the intervening or intervening of important documentary evidence was in a substantial sense or debet in the proceeding within the meaning of section 107 of the Act, and further the Court in reversing the finding of the lower appellate court is in the wrong. In the end the Court held—'Upon consideration of the whole of evidence we think the plaintiff has proved the existence of the promise in the finding in question.' and thus it sets aside the finding of the Court below which at first sight appeared to be only a finding of fact."

Similarly it has been held that—

"Proper effect of proved facts is a question of law." and "The meaning of words is a question of fact and the effect is question of law."

Just as I have said above the question of action has been a much as well as a legal consequence for the High Courts in India. But that is not all. It is also the duty of the Legislature to be prepared to give its aid in the light of evidence and it is thus that an easy way to approach the Legislature and secure the best way from which the High Courts of Justice in India are seeking. The provisions which have a High Court is to interfere in any case when it feels "that the conclusion at which the court

The following Bill was introduced in the Legislative Assembly on the 17th February 1941.—

S.A. BILL No. 7 OF 1941.

A Bill further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1908, for a better purpose.

Enacted: it is enacted further to amend the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1908, for the purpose hereinafter appearing; it is hereby enacted as follows:—

1. This Act may be called the Code of Criminal Procedure (Amendment) Bill, 1941.

2. In subsection (1) of section 308 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1908, after the words "and sentenced to" the words "or imprisonment and fine or" shall be inserted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

When a person is sentenced to fine and in the alternative to imprisonment or one of imprisonment or fine, he is given facilities for the payment of fine and the payment of the amount of fine must not be suspended for certain periods for the purpose under section 308 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. But these facilities are not available to a person who is sentenced to fine in addition to imprisonment or fine. This is due to the use of the words "or" in subsection (1) of section 308. Actually a court may have been induced by the Legislature to give facilities in such case and not in the other. In practice this discrepancy has caused great hardship especially in cases where the punishment of imprisonment is only nominal. For example in A.L.J. 1935 (1) page 208, An Hukam and another Vs. Emperor, where the appellants were sentenced to detention for the violation of the court and the fine of Rs. 100 and 50 respectively, it was held by the Calcutta High Court that no time for payment of fine could be granted, as the punishment of fine was coupled with the sentence of imprisonment. It is to remove this hardship that the present amendment is being proposed. It will give the court a discretion to give time for the payment of fine even in cases where in addition to sentence of fine a sentence of imprisonment has also been awarded.
